Young girls doing laundry while caring for siblings in a remote Himalayan village.

Dr. Shankar Rai, Chief Surgeon

Changing the Outside To Heal the Inside

In the remote regions of Nepal people often live without basic health care and medical resources. They depend on folk medicine, help from shamans and Buddhist Lamas. Their methods have limited results and only the strong survive.

Our project directly benefits children throughout Nepal. Those living in remote villages are located by educational teams or they come to us by word of mouth.

When a sufficient number of children are located a surgical camp is organized in their area. The more difficult cases are transported to Model Hospital in Katmandu. The children are evaluated and accepted as a surgical candidates according to age, weight and general state of health.

A mobile surgical team travels throughout Nepal to help children born with handicaps and deformities. These children would otherwise go through life with disfigurement and shame.

We support a twenty member surgical team dedicated to the goal of providing free surgical correction and therapy for impoverished children with congenital defects.

Children's Medical Aid is a 501 (c) (3) organization

The cost of screening, transportation, housing and food is provided for each surgical patient along with post operative therapy as needed.
